WHO IS THE HARMONY CUSTOMER?

WHETHER NATURALLY FRAGILE, SKIN SENSITISED BY LIFESTYLE FACTORS OR HAVING AN OCCASIONAL FLARE-UP ALL SUFFER WITH UNDERLYING INFLAMMATION AND A DISTURBED MICROBIOME.

A sensitised skin has a weaken skin barrier and is unable to defend against environmental aggressions. Inflammation is one of the leading causes of premature skin ageing.

Harmony has been expertly developed for sensitive, fragile and reactive skins.

The high tolerance formulas reinforce the skin's defence by strengthening and nourishing the microbiome to reduce inflammation and restore balance and radiance.

UNDERSTANDING SENSITIVE SKIN

Skin sensitivity can be an ongoing concern, or a temporary condition. Sensitivity is not related to a specific skin type, although dry skin types tend to be more prone to sensitivity.

Recent research* shows:

71%
report having sensitive skin problems

55%
increase over 2 decades

69%
says their skin does not react
well against cold weather,
tiredness and stress

CAUSES

BORN SENSITIVE: Some skins are naturally delicate and suffer with on-going sensitivity and dermatitis concerns.

LIFESTYLE: Poor nutrition, alcohol, stress and emotional upset can all affect the delicate balance of the skin and cause sensitivity flare-ups.

ENVIRONMENTAL: Sudden temperature changes, especially in colder weather can make the skin vulnerable to tightness and redness. Environmental pollution particles disrupt the skin balance causing damage and increased sensitivity.

COSMETIC PRODUCTS: Redness, tightness and itchiness can be caused by harsh skincare or incorrect usage. When the lipid barrier is compromised, essential water evaporates causing redness and flakiness resulting in poor skin healing. Reaction to cosmetics also causes temporary skin sensitivity.

HORMONAL: Fluctuating hormones can trigger imbalance and sensitivity. During menopause, dwindling oestrogen levels reduce hyaluronic acid and ceramide production resulting in a weakened skin barrier, and skin can become dry and irritated. For some, testosterone imbalance can increase oil, and breakouts and adult acne can develop.

WHY IS THE SKIN MICROBIOME SO IMPORTANT?

Our skin has an invisible ecosystem of microorganisms, known as the microbiome. These organisms, such as bacteria and yeast, are essential to keep our skin barrier healthy, balanced and protected. When the skin microbiome becomes disrupted it affects how our skin looks and behaves. The most common skin concerns are often related to an unbalanced skin microbiome, including sensitivity, premature ageing, and even acne breakouts.

SIGNS OF A DISTURBED MICROBIOME

- Increased sensitivity or hormonal flare-ups.
- Irritation, itchiness or redness.
- Blemishes that take a long time to heal.
- Dullness to the complexion and flakiness.
- Premature ageing.

INTRODUCING NEW HARMONY

High tolerance formulas with pre and post biotics to reinforce the skin's defences by strengthening and nourishing the microbiome to reduce inflammation, restore balance and radiance.

BREAKTHROUGH P-BIOTIC TECHNOLOGY IN SKIN MICROBIOME SCIENCE, FERMENTATION TECHNOLOGY AND REPAIRING OILS TO BOOST SKIN HEALTH FOR BEAUTIFUL SKIN.

THE A, B, C OF P-BIOTICS!

PRE-BIOTICS: Encourage the growth of beneficial microorganisms to increase microbiome diversity helping skin flourish. Prebiotics are mostly plant-based sugar molecules and oils with healthy carbohydrates that the skin's microbiome likes. Prebiotics feed and balance the microbiome to keep the skin barrier healthy.

PRO-BIOTICS: Live bacteria that can help to balance and strengthen the skin's microbiome but are difficult to use in skincare formulations because of the instability and short shelf-life.

POST-BIOTICS: Byproducts of fermented live microorganisms (instead of live microorganisms) to nourish and protect the skin. Postbiotics offer a source of nourishment (antioxidants, antimicrobial peptides) and help suppress the overgrowth of bacteria. They play an important role in keeping this microbe population naturally rich and diverse.

HARMONY FORMULAS HARNESS THE POWER OF PREBIOTICS AND POSTBIOTICS.
